We would like to draw your attention to the Horizon 2020 funded project ENLIVEN, Encouraging Lifelong Learning for an Inclusive and Vibrant Europe. ENLIVEN is a three years' project that aims to inform policy makers on how to successfully implement adult education and training as means to reduce inequalities and social disadvantages, and to improve the workforce. ENLIVEN explores adult education policies, its funding and opportunity structures and explores the system characteristics of adult education structures in Europe drawing on comparative research data, including the Labour Force Survey, PIAAC and the Adult Education Survey. Specific attention is also paid to workplace learning drawing on case studies. The development of an Intelligent Decision Support System is one of the core tasks aiming to help the team generating policy impact. The project runs until 30 September 2019 and is coordinated by Professor John Holford, The University of Nottingham, UK. Updates are regularly posted on www.h2020enliven.org and you can follow us on Twitter @h2020enliven
